Two internships (for 18-25 year-olds) are available with the Sun'aq Tribe of Kodiak Natural Resources Department.

Each 12-week paid internship begins May or June 2018. See summary below and www.sunaq.org/careers for job details, qualifications and application process.

Tribal Youth Fisheries Intern *

The Fisheries Intern will work closely with experienced Kodiak Regional Aquaculture Association - Research and Monitoring staff to develop entry-level field sampling and data processing skills during smolt monitoring, fishery monitoring, limnology, and laboratory evaluation projects. The successful candidate will also work with experienced Pillar Creek Hatchery and Kitoi Bay Hatchery staff which collectively produce all five pacific salmon species and rainbow trout, learning entry-level techniques in fish culture, fish transports, and broodstock collection. Over the course of the summer, the intern will become familiar living and working as part of a team in remote conditions. The networking opportunities and skills acquired during this program will familiarize the intern with future careers in Alaska fisheries research and salmon production. Shared housing and food stipend are provided.

Tribal Youth Wildlife Intern *

The purpose of this internship is to provide an opportunity for participation in wildlife research, monitoring, and management conducted by local wildlife professionals and management agencies. An additional goal is to encourage youth to pursue college-level education in natural resources studies. The intern will gain a solid understanding of wildlife ecology and management and become exposed to various wildlife, habitat, and vegetation monitoring techniques. The intern will work with collaborating agencies on various management and research projects on Kodiak, Afognak, and surrounding islands, and see a working model of collaborative efforts between Tribal, state and federal partners. Shared housing and food stipend are provided.
